4. Discloser of Risks:

Trading in precious metals (bullion tradings) is not suitable for all, and it contains many risks that may face the customer whether individual, company, financial institute or bank. The customer shall take into his/her consideration the below mentioned risks, and shall be aware of the risks before signing this agreement:

- The company is using an automated computer system through which the customer may log into his/her account via trading platforms specialized for the online trading of precious metals. This automated system may be corrupted for a period of time due to any irregular reason which may prevent both parties from completing the required deal and may result in loss of service or reduce its execution speed. If the customer encounters any technical problems from his side, the company recommends the customer to give instructions required to complete a deal via recorded phone call to the relevant department to avoid losing the opportunity to fix the required prices, as this paragraph is not included within the company's responsibility.
- The company recommends the customer to deal with his/her username and password carefully and to never disclose it to anyone. The company shall not be liable for the discloser of the username and password due to the customer's negligence. GOLD FUND LLC also recommends the customer to inform the company immediately upon suspicion of any account breakthrough which may affect negatively on the deals existing on the customer's trading platform.

- The company recommends the customer to keep the account settlement records on his/her personal PC, as the company's electronic copies of such records may be damaged for several reasons. It is worth mentioning that the company prints and copies the account records on weekly bases, as well as keeping all the customers' information in huge databases saved aside to avoid its loss, and the loss of any such data is only a temporary issue that should be declared by the company.
- The loss stoppage system allows automated orders to be put by the customer aiming to limit his/her loss to a specific amount. These orders may not be implemented due to several reasons such as the lake of liquidity or the high volatility in the precious metals' market or other reasons. Any negative effects arising from such cases are fully the customer's responsibilities.

Schedule of parameters:

The customer agrees to trade with the company on the below mentioned rates of commission, spread and required deposit rates. The customer further agrees that the company has a right to revise such rates any time after serving a two working days prior notice.
